SUMMARY

I am a Bachelor of computer application graduate and a motivated and disciplined fresher, I bring a blend of leadership, strong communication, and rapid learning abilities to the table. Backed by hands-on experience in developing a medicine delivery app and a library management system, I've honed my skills in project management and software development. Additionally, my proactive engagement in workshops covering machine learning, Next.js, and cybersecurity reflects my commitment to continuous learning and staying abreast of emerging technologies. Currently immersed in an internship focused on Python, I am eager to leverage these diverse experiences to contribute effectively, learn, and grow within a dynamic professional environment.
